

Northeast Asia's maritime disputes: sources of tension and prospects for cooperation

Workshop organised in the framework of CSCAP EU

Residence Palace, Brussels, 7 November 2014

Programme

9:15 Welcoming remarks

Antonio Missioli, EU Institute for Security Studies, Paris
Michael Matthiessen, European External Action Service, Brussels

9:30 CSCAP EU Meeting: update by the Steering Committee

Antonio Missioli, EU Institute for Security Studies, Paris
Michael Matthiessen, European External Action Service, Brussels
Gudrun Wacker, German Institute for International and Security Affairs (SWP), Berlin
Eva Pejsova, EU Institute for Security Studies, Paris

10:30-11:00 Coffee break

11:00-12:30 Session 1. External sources of tension: changing regional dynamics and great power competition

Chair Elena Atanassova-Cornelis, Antwerp University, Antwerp
Impulse-givers Gudrun Wacker, German Institute for International and Security Affairs (SWP), Berlin
Axel Berkofsky, University of Pavia, Pavia
Bernt Institute for Security and Development (ISDP), Stockholm

12:30-13:30 Lunch/ buffet

13:30-15:00 Session 2. Internal sources of tension: nationalism, history and identity politics

Chair Ramon Pacheco Pardo, King's College, London
Impulse-givers Alice Ekman, French Institute for International Relations (IFRI), Paris
Matthias Maass, Yonsei University, Seoul
John Hemmings, London School of Economics, London

15:00-15:30 Coffee break

15:30-17:00 Session 3. Prospects for Cooperation: joint development of resources, European lessons learnt

Chair Eva Pejsova, EU Institute for Security Studies, Paris

Impulse-givers Juha Jokela, Finnish Institute of International Affairs (FIIA), Helsinki
Michael Reiterer, European External Action Service, Brussels
Frans-Paul Van der Putten, Netherlands Institute of International Relations (Clingendael), The Hague

17:00-18:00 Wrap up by the Chairs and concluding remarks

18:00 End of the workshop